HISTORICAL SKETCH

OF THE

ORIGIN AND PROGRESS

"SOCIETY OF THE SONS OF ST. GEORGE."

By a resolution of the Society, passed on the 23d October, 1839,* the Secretary was requested to prepare a new edition of five hundred copies of the Constitution and By-laws, together with a list of the members and officers of the Society, from the earliest formation of the same, and such historical matter connected with the origin and progress of the Society, as may be thought interesting or important.

With an earnest desire to perpetuate the early incidents connected with the formation of the Society, the Secretary has cheerfully complied with the wishes of its members; but on entering upon this duty he found that the record from which he was principally to glean his information, was unfortunately very concise in its details, and in many instances consisted merely of dry registers of the business of the meetings. The motives which governed the projectors of this benevolent association are sufficiently and beautifully indicated in the "Introduction" to the constitution and rules, which the reader will find hereafter at the head of the first meeting of the Society; but in the midst of the array of distinguished and respectable names as set forth on that occasion, we are at a loss to know who were the most prominent, or to whom we owe the honors of the truly benevolent project. It would have been of much interest to the successors of those individuals, had we sufficient data from which we might receive particular information of their characters; as in all associations of men, we can more readily comprehend the usefulness of any undertaking, when we are fully acquainted with the habits of mind of those who are engaged in it. At this remote period we are cut off from such desirable knowledge, and it is presumed that scarcely a single contemporary can be found in our community, from whom we could derive the information we require. It is much to be regretted, that the early records of associations generally should contain so little of that minute matter which is so interesting to a lover of the past; and that men should forget, when they are about to enter upon a good work, that their posterity will desire to know every particular concerning it. How natural, for instance, will it be for a descendant of one of those honorable men who founded this Society, to inquire, Who were all these associates of my father? "I should delight to know somewhat more of their history."

It is presumed that all those, or nearly all who signed their names at the first meeting, on the 23d April, 1772, were of English birth, and all of English parentage; and we can well imagine that in their secret hearts might be found that deep-seated attachment to their native home which is strongly characteristic of our countrymen. They met together, consequently, with a warm fraternal feeling one towards another, as brothers who had been separated, and were now united again in a foreign land. But their meeting together on that occasion was not to indulge in personal considerations alone—they had a higher and a nobler motive. They came thither from the pure dictates of Christian benevolence—to unite themselves into an association, whose ministrations were to be carried into the humblest abodes; to succor the distressed, to assuage the anguish of the sick, to assist the unfortunate, to give good counsel to the stranger, to aid the industrious, and to carry out into effective exercise the principles of Him "who went about doing good."

Amongst that assembly we may mention, without any invidious distinction, as persons well known and greatly esteemed in this community, and who most likely took a prominent part in the formation of the Society, our first President, the Rev. Dr. Richard Peters; our first Vice-President, Robert Morris, Esq., the able financier; and our first Seeretary, the Hon. Judge Richard Peters; all of whom continued their connexion with the Society for many years, and by their countenance and support were instrumental in establishing it upon a steady and honorable foundation. We perceive also the names of many divines of the Episcopal Church, highly respectable members of the medical and mereantile professions, and officers of the army and navy, uniting their efforts in the common cause of humanity, for the express purpose of assisting their poor and distressed countrymen.

They assembled together in this city, when these present United States were still Colonies of the mother country, and when this State was still called the Province of Pennsylvania, under the authority of His Excellency Governor Richard Penn; and it is a source of proud satisfaction to us to know, that as the first assembly met together to promote a good object without any mixture of political partisanship, in a like spirit has the Society proceeded quietly on its way ever since, regardless of political rule, and mindful only of the high objects of its institution.

The Society first met together at Patrick Byrne's tavern, in Front Street, below Walnut Street, on St. George's Day, the 23d April, 1772; and the objects they had in view are perspicuously set forth in the subjoined Introduction to the constitution and rules adopted on that day.

INTRODUCTION.

WERE we to trace their origin to that primeval pair, with whom the Author of Nature completed the grand work of the Creation, we should find all mankind related to each other. Even at this remote period, when the sons of Adam are dispersed through the world, differing in complexion, custom, and manners, the civilized part of his descendants still retain a kind of fraternal affection, and are prompted by humanity and benevolence to relieve the distresses and solace the sorrows of their unfortunate fellow-mortals, in whatever clime or country they drew their first breath. Pity, social love, and charity, are citizens of the world, and extend their benign influences to the whole human race. Yet these heaven-born virtues have bounds prescribed to them, as to the radiant lamp of day, which shines with but a feeble beam upon countries remote from its path, while with redoubled vigor it cheers, enlightens, and enlivens those more immediately in its presence.

Man, however boundless are the desires excited in him by benevolence and social affection, is still limited in his abilities and capacity; and though his wishes may incline him to be serviceable to all his fellow-creatures, he soon discovers that he has it in his power to be of use but to a very few. Conscious of this, he begins with those to whom the ties of blood have more immediately connected him, and widens the circle as far as his abilities will permit. Among the objects which present themselves for his assistance and relief, after his particular relatives and friends, his countrymen are his peculiar care; his predilection for them is by no means the effect of narrowness of sentiment, but proceeds from the same laudable motives which, ever since the establishment of civil society, have induced good citizens not only to love, but, if occasion required, to die for their country. Policy has ever been made use of to encourage this patriotic benevolence, and, in some states, honors and advantages have been decreed to those who saved the life of a citizen. Equally praiseworthy with preserving his life, must it be to rescue a fellow citizen from the iron hands of penury and want; nay, in some cases, perhaps more so, for death is often more eligible than a life of wretchedness.

Men of merit are to be found in almost every nation; but mankind in common prefer the meritorious of their own, to those of any other country. We cannot extend our beneficence universally, and therefore must select the objects of our charity from the general class of mankind by some rule or other. In forming this rule, we are led to select those of our own particular nation, not only from a national desire every man has to relieve them, but because experience teaches us, that his countrymen are the first to whom a stranger in distress thinks of applying for relief.

National attachments and prejudices are for the most part idle and unnecessary; and when they operate so far as to make us injure or despise persons born in a different country from ourselves, they are indeed very reprehensible. But although national distinction should on most occasions be avoided, yet the necessity of forming the present Society, is one proof that on some occasions it may answer the best purposes. Numbers of Englishmen have arrived in this city, and being disappointed in their expectations have been reduced to the lowest ebb of distress; and not knowing where to apply for relief or advice, have sunk into ruin almost unnoticed, when perhaps a little good counsel, or a small pecuniary assistance, would have saved them from destruction, and made them useful members of society.

Lest such melancholy instances of wretchedness should happen for the future, it is thought proper by the subscribers to form themselves into an Association, by the name of "The Society of the Sons of St. George, established at Philadelphia, for the advice and assistance of Englishmen in distress." And this, not for the purpose of keeping alive any invidious national distinction—which ought particularly to be avoided between the different nations composing the British state in America, where all the freemen (from wheresoever they originally migrated) are brethren, friends, and countrymen—but merely that unfortunate Englishmen, and especially those who are strangers in America, may know where to apply for countenance and assistance.

It is therefore agreed by the subscribers, that they, and each of them, will become members of the said Society, and be subject to the following rules and regulations for the conduct and good government thereof :—

At the next meeting of the Society, in July, His Excellency Governor Penn became a member, and in October of the same year the Rev. Wm. White, afterwards the venerable Bishop of that name, was elected a member, and continued his connexion with the Society up to the time of his death, a period of sixty-four years.

Directly after the institution of the Society the applications for assistance from poor Englishmen became very numerous, and we may infer that, even at that period, there was much want and poverty in the land. These applications were principally from weavers and other manufacturers, who thus early introduced the mechanical and manufacturing arts of Europe into this country; and through the fostering care of this Society many were enabled to become prosperous citizens, and highly useful members of the community. Some artisans are to be found in the list of applications who were induced to come out to this new country, confiding in the certainty of immediate prosperity, but whose trades were not known here at that time, and who consequently suffered from the want of occupation; amongst these were several silk weavers, who could find no employment; a class who can even at this day scarcely support themselves in their own business in the United States.

At that time we find it was the custom of the Society to allow a small weekly stipend to those objects who were deemed worthy, as well as specific amounts in other cases; and its good offices became so widely known, that the applications for relief became too numerous for the means in hand. In this dilemma recourse was had to an appeal to their fellow citizens; and the following address was inserted, in October, 1773, in the newspapers of the day:—

“TO ALL BENEVOLENT AND CHARITABLE ENGLISHMEN.

“‘I was a stranger, and ye took me in,’ is mentioned by the Fountain of Benevolence as one of the most meritorious among the actions of humanity. Happy are they of whom it can be said, thrice happy they who feel the effects of this kind of Christian benignity. To receive and comfort the needy stranger, and help the afflicted and those who are ‘sick and in prison,’ are exercises of virtue which exalt us above the level of mortality; and to the performance of which we are excited by an example no less than Divine.

“Among the many melancholy situations into which adversity plunges its wretched victims, there is none more peculiarly distressing than that of him who wants perhaps the very necessities of life in a strange country, far from his relations and friends. His distress is doubly poignant, when he knows not of whom to seek for help; the sting of affliction is doubly severe when he has none to sympathize in his sorrows. Under the influence of sentiments such as these, a number of gentlemen, Englishmen and sons of Englishmen, residing in Philadelphia, in the Province of Pennsylvania, struck with the frequent instances of wretchedness which they found among their countrymen who came to America upon speculation, or driven thither by a virtuous necessity, have formed themselves into a Society by the name of ‘The Society of the Sons of St. George, established at Philadelphia for the advice and assistance of Englishmen in distress.’ This Society consists of several of the principal and most respectable Englishmen in the city. The Honorable Richard Penn, Esq., late Governor of the Province, is their President, and all the members are gentlemen of property and character. Their design is to reduce that charity which in their separate capacities they extended to their poor and unfortunate countrymen accidentally, into a regular system of relief. For this purpose they are endeavoring by degrees to establish a permanent fund out of the interest of which they may assist the objects of their institution. Well digested rules have been made for the government of the Society, and proper officers appointed, whose duty it is to manage the affairs of the Society, to inquire into the circumstances of distressed appliers, and distribute the charity to none but the virtuous and deserving. A few out of the many donations which this infant Society has made are mentioned, and one of their rules copied below ; whereby the end and design of their association may in some measure be seen. The numbers of the Society are at present so small, and the general demands of the needy of all nations settled among us are so great, that the members can spare but little towards this particular charity. It has therefore been thought expedient by the Society to apply to our benevolent countrymen in England and elsewhere, requesting their assistance towards carrying on this our meritorious design, as we are well assured that they have never yet refused their aid when they could be satisfied that their charity would be properly applied.

“ We trust that those of our countrymen who shall be applied to, will think our plan merits their countenance, and that they will contribute out of their abundance a small matter towards the support of a charity so necessary and commendable, and suffer us to enrol their names as honorary members of our Society and friends to their countrymen. For our parts we shall receive their donations with thankfulness, and distribute them with economy and care.”

This strong appeal would have met with a corresponding response from the community, had not the minds of the people throughout the provinces been kept in a continued anxiety, in consequence of the difficulties with the mother country : this state of things no doubt affected the members generally, and less exertion was made to induce others to join the institution, or to augment the funds. These difficulties increasing throughout the year 1774, but few members were added to the Society ; and when they met together at the City Tavern to celebrate the anniversary of St. George, on the 23d April, 1775, the company were thrown into consternation at the reception of the news of the battle of Lexington. Robert Morris, Esq., was the presiding officer on that occasion, and his presence could not control the agitation of the members : many withdrew with precipitation from the table, and gloom and despondency all at once succeeded to festivity and rejoicing.

The meetings of the Society were but thinly attended after this event, and on the 24th July, 1775, the following resolution was passed :—

“Resolved, As it seems disagreeable to the majority of this Society to attend the stated meetings, owing no doubt to the general distress of this unhappy country, which prevents them from extending their wonted charity to any particular set of people ; it is thought expedient, and agreed to by us, that the future meetings of the Society shall be discontinued until the now President, Vice-President, and other officers of the Society shall think proper to call the members together for the benevolent purposes for which we were originally associated ; all fines for non-attendance to cease until the affairs of the Society flow in their former channel.”

After this, a special meeting was called on the 4th March, 1776, when, after attending to the regular business, the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted :—

*“Whereas that Dr. * * having shown himself inimical to the liberties of this country, and thereby rendered himself unworthy of being a member of this Society,* *“Resolved, unanimously, that the said Dr. * * be expelled, and no more considered a member of this Society, and the Secretary is directed to publish this minute in the public newspapers of this City.*

“Resolved, That the Secretary is directed to issue the usual notices for the meeting of the Society on the next St. George’s day.”

The Society accordingly met together again on the 23d April, 1776, and then, as we suppose, influenced by the breaking out of the revolution, and the turbulence of the times, it ceased its operations entirely ; at least for several years of the continuance of the strife between England and the United States. The Society no doubt bore in mind the peculiar situation of its members, in regard to both the contending parties, and with a becoming moderation refrained from every appearance of national feeling. Many of its leading members became deeply interested in the success of the American cause, but this feeling did not weaken their attachment to the Society, and we have peculiar pleasure in recording that several of the most zealous revolutionists continued their connexion with it, after the clouds and shadows of those stormy times had passed away.

Some years elapsed after these celebrated events before the members felt warranted to meet again as an English society ; for although its objects were purely benevolent, it was feared that party sensibility would attribute other motives than the right ones to the meetings of Englishmen. They accordingly resolved to subdue for a time those keen national feelings, which it is the peculiar pride of our countrymen to cherish, rather than offend that community of which they were a part; so that the most fastidious or the most patriotic might bear witness to the fact that the Society avoided every appearance of evil.

Moved by these considerations the Society postponed their assembling together until the 23d April, 1787, when they met at the City Tavern, and transacted the ordinary business. A committee was appointed at that meeting to revise the By-Laws, &c., and make them conformable to the altered state of society which then existed, and Messrs. Robert Morris and Richard Bache were appointed said committee.

It appears by the record that another association of Englishmen met together on that day at Dennison's Tavern, (George Inn, south-west corner of Arch and Second Street) and sent a deputation to the Society, who stated, "that the association they represented apologized for their not being able to attend the meeting on account of a meeting among themselves which was proposed previously to the notification of the Society, but they assured the Society that at the next commemoration they would feel happy in uniting with them."

At this meeting of the Society the same officers were appointed that had filled the offices previously to the Declaration of Independence.

In a short time after this reunion of the Society it received a large accession of members, and its means of doing good were proportionably extended; among the members elected in October, 1787, was his Excellency BENJAMIN FRANKLIN, and many other persons of great respectability.

The Society then moved steadily on in its career of usefulness for several years, until the middle of 1793. After that period, for about two years, there is no record of any transactions before the Society, and it does not appear that any cause was assigned for the interruption. On the 23d April, 1796, the Society met again and chose Robert Morris, Esq., President, and transacted business, and distributed charity as usual. From this time we find the Society moving regularly on in its proceedings, and holding its stated quarterly meetings without further intermission, from that day to the present,—a period of between forty and fifty years.

In societies which are purely benevolent in their design, there is but little interesting matter to transcribe; one meeting corresponds with another in effect, and the only variation lies in the different names and circumstances of those who apply for relief ; the routine of business is the same ; the minutes of the previous meeting are read ; committees report ; applications for charity are brought forward and discussed, and these are referred to separate committees for action ; new members are proposed for election, and others, previously nominated, are elected ; and in this manner the record of one meeting agrees in general with another.

We find, consequently, that no proceedings of interest occurred in the Society from the above date, until the 15th of December, 1808, when a special meeting was called to take into consideration the propriety of procuring a charter of incorporation, which resulted in the appointment of a committee consisting of Messrs. Thomas Ketland, Joseph Sims, John Vaughan, Dr. J. P. Glentworth, and T. B. Freeman, who were requested to take measures for that purpose. That committee, it is believed, entered actively upon their duty, but were unable to procure the passage of a law through the Legislature, for some length of time. In 1810, the Committee renewed their application to the Legislature, but were as unsuccessful as before ; and it was not until the commencement of the year 1813, that they succeeded in procuring from Governor Snyder the present charter.

In the year 1821 we find that the Society received a Circular from the Commissioners on Pauperism, requesting certain information relative to the usages and general conduct of the Society ; and we have deemed it proper to publish both the Circular and the Reply of the Treasurer ; as the able document of the late Joseph Bell, Esq., in answer to the queries of the Board of Commissioners, develops in a very lucid manner the general usages and practice of the Society, and embraces very interesting statistical information, which may be useful as a guide on future occasions, and will afford the members a comprehensive view of the operations of the Society for a given time.

C I R C U L A R .

The Commissioners appointed by the Governor, under an Act of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, passed on the 2d of April, 1821, have directed the following interrogatories to be submitted to the charitable societies of the City and Liberties of Philadelphia, with a request that they may be pleased to furnish such answers as their knowledge shall enable them to give in respect thereto. An early compliance with the wish of the Commissioners will essentially contribute to their qualification for the discharge of the important duties devolved upon them.

1st. When was your Society instituted? How many belong to it?

2d. What sum has been expended annually since its institution?

3d. How are the funds created?

4th. Do you distribute money or clothing? State the proportions.

5th. The average number relieved?

5th. State whether males, females, adults, children, sick, or infirm, if possible, and how many of each for a series of years?

7th. If any, what number of children do you educate gratuitously, and at what annual expense? Be pleased also to state what, in your opinion, are the causes which produce the necessity for the relief which you distribute.

Signed by order, and on behalf of Board of Commissioners on Pauperism.

Signed,

ROBERTS VAUX,

President.

Attested, THOMAS M. PETTIT,

Secretary.

PHILADELPHIA, May 25th, 1821.

A N S W E R .

In compliance with the wish of the Commissioners on Pauperism, requested in the Circular of their Board, dated the 25th May, 1821, addressed to the Treasurer of the Society of the Sons of St. George, and received the 13th ult., I now furnish the following answers to the Interrogatories therein put, which, from my knowledge, I am enabled to give in respect thereto, viz :

First. “The Society of the Sons of St. George, established at Philadelphia for the advice and assistance of Englishmen in distress,” was instituted on the 23d of April, 1772, as a voluntary association, and so continued until the 16th January, 1813, when it was incorporated and became known in law, from which period to the 23d January, 1821, (a series of eight years), those answers are formed.

About one hundred resident members now contribute ; distant ones do not.

Second. There has been expended annually, as follows :

From 23d January, 1813, to 23d January, 1814,	- -	$410 50
“ “ 1814, “ “ 1815,	. -	414 50

“ “ 1817, “ “ 1818,	- -	418 00
“ “ 1818, “ “ 1819,	- -	649 16
“ “ 1819, “ “ 1820,	- -	636 29
“ “ 1820, “ “ 1821,	- -	445 25

		$3754 87

Making in the aggregate three thousand seven hundred and fifty-four dollars and eighty-seven cents expended for eharitable purposes in eight years, or an average of $469 36 per annum.

Third. From the quarterly contributions of members, and the interest upon funds and donations invested.

Fourth. In money, chiefly. In some instances where clothing, wood, &c., is thought to be more beneficial, such are purchased and given in lieu of money.

Fifth. Six hundred and thirty-eight adults, and five hundred and thirty-two children have been relieved, exclusive of twenty-two cases, stated, “with a large family of ehildren,” which, not being ascertained, may be one hundred ehildren more.

Sixth. Of the preceeding 638 adults, 276 were males and 362 females ; the sexes of the children being unknown, as also the number of sick or infirm.

During the following years, were relieved, viz :

Years.	Adults.	Males.	Females.	Children.	Families of Children,
1813 - - -	42	10	32	24	3
1814 - - -	62	16	46	18	5
1815 - - -	48	16	32	21	2
1816 - - -	63	23	40	64	9
1817 - - -	62	32	30	46	2
1818 - - -	110	56	54	109	1
1819 - - -	135	71	64	118	7

	Females, 362				No. unknown.

Seventh. From the style and title of this Society it will be perceived that the education of children was never contemplated. To succor the unhappy stranger arriving from England, with some timely advice or pecuniary assistance, whereby he might not only be saved from ruin, but perhaps become a useful member of society, was the primitive object of its establishment. And many there are of agriculturalists, manufacturers, artificers, and persons of no trade or calling, who have derived incalculable benefits therefrom, by advice given them or employment procured for them, without standing in need of pecuniary aid. Such are not embraced amongst those stated in the preceding answers to have had relief.

The Society, however, has not confined its usefulness to persons immediately arriving from England ; it has extended benevolent designs to “Englishmen, the sons of Englishmen, their widows and children,” without respect to their time of residence here, or whether the parents were both born in England, or where their children were born. The causes which produce the necessity for the relief distributed are, in my opinion, the want of assistance to remove strangers to places for settlement or employment, or being disappointed in their expectations of meeting friends, to remove them where they had relatives or friends—old age or infirmities, sickness, accidents, the want of employment, or other exigency beyond their controls, rendering them unable to support themselves, or in many instances their numerous families of children. My reasons for forming this opinion, are founded upon my knowledge of the Society granting no relief to applicants unknown, without appointing a committee of investigation, and if found to be unworthy the authorized relief is withheld.

So, also, with the Stewards, or Committee of Eight, two of whom are constantly on duty to receive applications for advice or assistance, and who are authorized to grant pecuniary relief to a limited amount between the quarterly meetings of the Society. At the ensuing meeting their distributions are reported to the Society for its information and approbation.

They likewise, with the assistance of other members, attend particularly to finding employment, by soliciting applications, and making arrangements to know of various grades of employment ; in which they have succeeded, to a considerable extent, in supplying and placing those in want. From this experience I take leave most respectfully to suggest for your consideration the propriety of establishing an office or offices for that purpose.

As employment is a much more desirable and effectual relief than temporary supplies in money, much pains have been taken to obtain the former, in order to preserve the latter for those who are unable to work ; notwithstanding which it is firmly believed that a sum, equal at least to that stated to have been bestowed by the Society, is raised by the voluntary donations of members (when applied to by the Stewards or individual members) to meet immediate purposes, for which the limited resources of the Society are inadequate.

Respectfully submitted, by your obedient servant,

Signed, JOSEPH BELL,
Treasurer.

TO ROBERTS VAUX, ESQ.,

President of the Board of Commissioners on Pauperism.

PHILADELPHIA, July 23d, 1821.

It may be well to remark that since the period of the above document, in 1821, the Society has been gradually gaining strength, and its means of benevolence have much increased, so that its disbursements at the present time, to necessitous Englishmen, are nearly twice the amount of the average sum paid between the years 1823 and 1820, as specified by Mr. Bell.

Much of the increased means now enjoyed by the Society, has been derived from the munificent bequest of the Rev. Dr. Joseph Pilmore, who was for many years an active and honored member. He died in this city 1825, leaving to the Society one-half of his residuary estate, which amounted to the sum of $8,162 52.

This bequest enabled the Society to extend its charities considerably, and it is to be hoped that so good an example will have a due influence on the minds of other Englishmen, who have funds at their command, and whose ties of affinity have been destroyed; after their own blood relations, there are none who have so direct a call upon their sympathies as their own countrymen; and it must be a source of pleasure to the affluent man while living, to know that he has it in his power to distribute aid and succor to these unfortunates, both while he lives and after he has ceased to be. The memory of the good man lives after him, and is not "interred with his bones." The portrait of this great benefactor, which the Society ordered, painted by Mr. Neagle, still brings his image before us at our anniversary meetings, and aids the imagination while it lingers upon the character of such a man. In order to perpetuate his deeds more fully, we have hereto appended an extract from his will; and have given a short memoir of his life, as it was delivered before the Society at the anniversary dinner in 1826.

EXTRACT FROM THE WILL.

Item.—I give and bequeath fifty dollars to Frederick Scuder, my man-servant. Moreover, I will and ordain that all my residuary estate, after paying all my debts, legacies, &c., shall be equally divided into two parts, one-half towards the support of the Protestant Episcopale in the State of Pennsylvania, to be paid to the Treasurer for the time being of the Society of the Protestant Episcopal Church. The other half, I give and bequeath "the Society of the Sons of St. George, established in Philadelphia, for the advice and assistance of Englishmen in distress," to be paid to their Treasurer for the time being, and applied for the carrying on of the charitable designs of that Institution according to the terms and principles of their charter. Furthermore, I will and ordain that, for the payment of all the legacies mentioned above, all my property of every kind shall be sold as soon as may be after my death, &c., &c., and I appoint Richard North and John Matthews, Esqs., of the city of Philadelphia, executors of this my last will and testament : In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal, this twenty-second day of May, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and sixteen.

[SEAL.]

Signed, JOSEPH PILMORE, D.D.

The following tribute of gratitude to the memory of the Rev. Dr. Joseph Pilmore, was delivered at the anniversary dinner at Head's Mansion House Hotel, on the 24th of April, 1826.

MR. PRESIDENT,—Having gone through your customary routine of toasts, on this our festive anniversary, I beg leave to solicit, for a few moments, the attention of the Society, to an event which has occurred since our last annual meeting in this place ; I mean the death of our late venerable and highly respected brother, the Rev. Dr. Joseph Pilmore, late Rector of St. Paul's Church in this city, whose professional merit, as a zealous orthodox and pious divine, the voice of popular applause, and the testimony of crowded audiences, for many years before his death, loudly proclaimed.

He was born in Yorkshire, on the 31st October, 1739, and emigrated to this country, in the character of a Methodist itinerant preacher, in the year 1769. Being a man of vigorous and active intellect, he, after much serious investigation, became acquainted with, and of course, attached to the doctrines and discipline of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and obtained admission into it, first as a deacon, and afterwards as a priest, by the ordination of Bishop Seabury ; as such, he became one of her most zealous advocates, and continued so to the day of his death, which happened on the 24th July, 1825, in the 86th year of his age. He was elected an honorary member of this Society on the 23d April, 1791. Being a native of England, he uniformly maintained and cherished an ardent attachment to her government, laws, and established religion ; and was ever ready to assist his countrymen, when involved in difficulties, both with his counsel and his purse ; and with that nobleness of mind, that independence of character, and that integrity of principle, which characterize the true-born Englishmen, he admired, approved, and scrupulously conformed to the civil and ecclesiastical establishments of this country; in which, under different locations, he so many years resided as a useful and exemplary citizen.

Though married, yet, having no children, his domestic expenses were small, and he was thereby, through the exercise of temperance and frugality, "that he might have to give to him who needed," enabled to accumulate a very handsome independence, with a considerable portion of which he has generously endowed our charitable institution.

It is well known, that no inconsiderable portion of the population of this city arises from emigrants from England of the middle and lower classes of society, who flatter themselves with the hope of improving their circumstances in a new country. The consequent wide range of embarrassment and distress which many of them experience, from being "unknowing and unknown" in a strange land, naturally occasions the number of applicants to our Society to be annually multiplied. When these things are considered, they ought forcibly to operate upon the sensibility, the patriotism, and the liberality of every Englishman; and that they did so upon the heart of our departed brother, he evinced by the largeness of his bequest to us, in a sum estimated to be above $7000.

May his philanthropy, his generosity, and his patriotism, prove influential upon those of his countrymen who are residents among us, and particularly upon the members of our highly useful and benevolent Institution,—“The Society of the Sons of St. George, established at Philadelphia, for the advice and assistance of Englishmen in distress.”

When so active, useful, and truly meritorious a character is called to his great account, his virtues and benevolent actions should not only be remembered and imitated by his survivors, but occasionally celebrated by verbal acknowledgments. I therefore beg leave to propose, sir, that we now commemorate, in a toast, “The memory of the Rev. Dr. Joseph Pilmore, our late highly respected brother, and bountiful benefactor, and that at our future annual meetings this tribute of respect and gratitude should constitute one of the prescribed toasts of the day.”

In 1830, the Society received a bequest of $250 from the estate of Wm. Mackenzie, a citizen of Philadelphia, who was well known for his literary character.

In 1836, we lost one of the oldest and most venerated of our members, in the person of the Right Rev. Wm. White, D. D.; and the Society joined with the whole community in the expression of the deepest sorrow for the bereavement. This prelate was ordained as a Bishop, by the Archbishop of Canterbury, in February, 1787, and spent a long life in the exemplification of the Christian virtues. Perhaps no other individual ever enjoyed a larger share of the public esteem and love while living, or whose loss was more deeply or more sincerely mourned by the citizens of the whole of the United States. The Society was honored by the friendship of such a man for so many years. He became a member in 1772, and continued his connexion with us until his decease.

About the time of the death of the venerable Bishop, a native of France, Peter Antoine Blenon, died at Hamilton Village, near this city; he was born at Sens in 1759, and became a citizen of the United States in 1798. Previous to his decease he made a Will, bequeathing the residue of his estate, after some special legacies, to be divided amongst "the institutions of charity and beneficence constituted and established at Philadelphia for the relief of the unfortunate," &c. This residuary estate it is believed amounted to upwards of $100,000. Believing that our Society was entitled to a portion of this fund, the officers of the Society addressed a note to Messrs. Charles Chauncey, Wm. Patton, Godfrey Weber, and A. Durand, executors to the estate, dated 4th January, 1837, laying our claims before them, and accompanied the note with such documents as went to prove the design and practice of our Society. Numerous other Societies, however, incorporated and otherwise, laid claims to the funds, and the executors became puzzled to know which applications should be received, and which rejected. Auditors were appointed by the Orphans' Court to examine these various claims, and they reported in July, 1839, in favor of several incorporated Societies, amongst which our Society is No. 23 on the list. The matter is still unsettled in the Orphans' Court, owing to the litigation of those bodies whose claims have not been favorably received by the auditors; but it is to be hoped that the Court will come to a final determination on the business in a short time. Our Society will no doubt receive a portion of the funds, although we can form no idea of the amount.

Another of our old and respected members paid the debt of nature in June, 1837. William Young Birch was an active officer for many years, and continued his connexion with us until his last hour. He was a native of Manchester, and came to this country in 1793, where he carried on the business of a bookseller for many years, and retired from it with a handsome fortune. At his death he left many legacies, and forgot not the Benevolent Society with which he had been so long connected. He bequeathed to the Society $1000, which was received from his executors, Messrs. Wm. P. Duane, Isaac Elliott, and Joseph Sill, soon after his decease. His immense residuary fund was left to "the Pennsylvania Institution for the Instruction of the Blind;" and we are well informed that the executors paid over to that institution property to the amount of about $180,000. A more munificent bequest has rarely fell under our notice, and it is a matter of pride to us that we can number him amongst our associates. His remains are interred at Laurel Hill Cemetery, over which the Institution have recently erected a handsome monument.

In the year 1837, soon after the accession of her majesty Queen Victoria to the throne of Great Britain, the Society determined to memorialize her majesty to sit for her portrait, to Mr. Thomas Sully, the artist, who departed for England in October of that year, carrying with him the memorial; which declared that the Society wished "to place it in a conspicuous situation as the means, at the meetings of our Society, of cherishing the recollections of the country from whence we sprung." The portrait was finished in April, 1838, and subsequently brought to this city by the artist; but before its delivery Mr. Sully conceived that he had a right to copy it, and exhibit the original picture for his own benefit. This was resisted by the Society, by an injunction granted by the Supreme Court of this State; but shortly after it was agreed by the parties to submit the matter in dispute to the arbitration of three legal gentlemen. Mr. Horace Binney was chosen by Mr. Sully; Mr. T. I. Wharton was chosen by the Society; and these gentlemen selected Mr. William Rawle as the third arbitrator—who, on the 24th May, 1839, gave an award, allowing Mr. Sully to retain his copy of the portrait, by declaring that he was the author and exclusive owner of the invention and design, &c.; and ordering that the original portrait should be delivered to the Society, on payment of the sum originally agreed upon ($1000). Mr. Wharton dissented to the award, in a written argument of much force, which was printed with the other documents.

The original portrait was soon after exhibited by the Society, and brought into its funds a considerable sum; and has since graced the anniversary dinners of the Society by its beauty as a work of art, and its admirable similitude to the Sovereign of the British Empire, who continues to reign in the hearts of her people.

We have now brought the proceedings of the Society down to the present day, and we have reason to congratulate ourselves that it is in a prosperous condition. Its ability of doing good has been doubled since the demise of Dr. Pilmore, and until the present year, it has been gradually increasing its investments. Still its means are very often found inadequate to meet the urgent demands of the destitute and forlorn Englishman and his family, and during the past winter the Stewards have been obliged to turn away many poor people who were deserving of relief. The Stewards, who thus feel themselves debarred from giving assistance as the agents of the Society, have often been found contributing to the relief of their unfortunate countrymen from their own private purse; and it affords the writer much gratification to give publicity to their liberal and benevolent co-operation in the work of Christian charity.

This fact reminds us also of the virtues and of the active philanthropy of those co-laborers of ours who have gone to "that bourne from whence no traveller returns." It is a tribute due to the memory of our venerated friends and fellow-members to mention that the Society will ever bear in grateful remembrance the services of Robert E. Griffith, Joseph Bell, William Page, Joseph Toddhunter, Richard North, Thomas Astley, John Vaughan, and Elijah Dallett; and their characters are bequeathed to us as a guide and example worthy of imitation, both as members of this benevolent association and as members of the great human family.

JANUARY, 1854.

"At an adjourned quarterly meeting of the Society held November 6th, 1856, it was unanimously

"Resolved, That the Secretary be authorized to have printed for the use of the Members, an edition of 500 copies of the pamphlet containing the Charter, By-laws, &c., and that the Historical Sketch, Lists of Members, &c., be corrected and continued to the time of publication.”

In performing the duty assigned in the foregoing resolution, the Secretary has few incidents of importance to add to the interesting Historical Sketch from the pen of a former Secretary.

By the death of Mr. Thomas Elkins on the 6th October, 1854, the Society lost one of its most valuable members of nearly 14 years' standing. The deceased acted as a Steward for 5 years, and in 1851, in consequence of the great increase of duties devolving upon the Stewards, it became necessary to appoint an Agent to act as the almoner of the Society, which office Mr. Elkins was induced to accept and filled, to the end of his useful life, with zeal and integrity, combined with active sympathy and kindness to the distressed.

On the 2d November, 1854, the Society was called to mourn the sudden death of its respected President, Joseph Sill, Esq., who had been upwards of 25 years a member, during that time he had served as Steward 2 years, as Secretary 8 years, as Vice-President 6 years, and as President 7 years, performing the duties of these offices with credit to himself and honor to the Society. Mr. Sill died lamented by all who knew him, leaving a bright example of benevolence and Christian courtesy to all who had the happiness of his acquaintance.

In the progress of time, as the operations of the Society were greatly enlarged, several provisions of the original Charter were found to be inconsistent with the altered circumstances of the Society, although entirely appropriate to its early government. To remedy this inconvenience, an application was made to the competent authority, for an amended Charter, which was granted by the Court of Common Pleas, on the 7th June, 1856, and is published herewith.

The Society has regularly and quietly continued its ministrations to the unfortunate and destitute emigrant from the land of our fathers. In consequence of the great increase in immigration, the claims upon the Society have been much more numerous, and during the year which terminated January 23d, 1856, the sum of $2637.02 in money, was distributed through its agency, besides a considerable quantity of provisions and clothing contributed by the members and others.

CHARTER.

To all to whom these presents shall come, Greeting : Know ye that we whose names are hereunto subscribed, being citizens of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, having associated for the purpose of establishing in Philadelphia a Society for the advice and assistance of Englishmen in distress, and being desirous of acquiring and enjoying the powers and immunities of a corporation or body politic in law, according to an Act of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, passed the sixth day of April, one thousand seven hundred and ninety-one, do hereby declare, that we have associated ourselves together for the purpose aforesaid, by the name, style, and title, and under the articles and conditions following, that is to say :—

ARTICLE I.

That the name, style, and title of this Corporation shall be “THE SOCIETY OF THE SONS OF ST. GEORGE, established at Philadelphia, for the advice and assistance of ENGLISHMEN in distress.”

ARTICLE II.

That the members of this Society and such others, being citizens of this Commonwealth, as shall hereafter be admitted to or become members of the said Society, shall become and be a Corporation or body politic, in law and in fact, to have continuance by the name, style, and title aforesaid, and shall have full power and authority to make, have and use one common seal, with such devices and inscription as they shall deem proper, and the same to break, alter and renew at their pleasure ; and by the name, style, and title aforesaid, shall be capable in law to sue and be sued, plead and be impleaded, in any court or courts, before any Judge or Judges, Justice or Justices, in all manner of suits, complaints, pleas, causes, matters, and demands whatsoever, and all and every matter or thing therein to do, in as full and effectual a manner as any other person or persons, bodies politic and corporate, within this Commonwealth, incorporated under this Act, may or can do; and shall be authorized and empowered to make rules, by-laws and ordinances, and to do everything needful for the good government and support of the affairs of the said Corporation. Provided always, that the said by-laws, rules, and ordinances, or any of them, be not repugnant to the Constitution and laws of the United States, to the Constitution and laws of this Commonwealth, or to the present instrument.

ARTICLE III.

That the said Society and their successors, by the name, style and title aforesaid, shall be able and capable in law, according to the terms and conditions of this instrument, to take, receive, and hold all, and all manner of lands, tenements, annuities, franchises and hereditaments, and any sum and sums of money, and any manner and portion of goods and chattels bequeathed to the said Society, to be employed and disposed of according to the objects, articles, and conditions of this instrument, the articles and by-laws of the said Society, or of the will and intention of the donors, and shall have power to rent, or sell and convey any Real Estate, or other property so bequeathed, or which may have been, or shall hereafter be, acquired by them. Provided always, that the clear yearly value or income of the messuages, houses, lands and tenements, rents, annuities or other hereditaments and real estate of the said Society, and the interest of money by the said Society lent, shall not exceed the sum of five thousand dollars.

ARTICLE IV.

That the mode of choosing members be by ballot, at a quarterly meeting of the Society, and no person shall be admitted a member unless he be elected by at least three-fourths of the members present, nor unless such member shall have been previously proposed at a quarterly meeting, and his name entered upon the minutes of the Society.

ARTICLE V.

There shall be chosen by ballot, at the quarterly meeting in January, in every year, a President, Vice President, Treasurer, Secretary, eight Stewards, a Messenger and such other officers as may be deemed necessary, whose duties respectively shall be provided for in the by-laws, to serve for the year ensuing such their election.

ARTICLE VI.

If any of the officers of the Society should happen to die, or remove out of the city, others shall be chosen by ballot, at any quarterly or special meeting, to serve the remainder of the year.

ARTICLE VII.

The stated quarterly meetings of the Society, (one whereof shall be the annual meeting, on St. George's day,) shall be held on every, the twenty-third days of January, April, July, and October in every year, unless either of said days shall happen on a Sunday, then the said meeting shall be held on the next succeeding day.

ARTICLE VIII.

As the Society's views are as well to give relief to each other, as to render assistance to distressed Englishmen, and contemplating that any member of this Society may at some future period (however flourishing or easy his present situation in life,) be plunged into distress by unavoidable accidental misfortune, assistance to such unfortunate member ought as well to be attended to, as succoring the unhappy stranger; and as the Society do not proceed upon narrow principles, but will assist their poor countrymen in a way which will be also advantageous to the community, artificers, and manufacturers coming into this state, and being natives of England or sons of Englishmen, shall be encouraged and assisted by the Society, more abundantly than those poor people who are not of any trade or calling.

ARTICLE IX.

And it is agreed and declared that all the property and funds, books, papers, vouchers, and muniments whatsoever, heretofore belonging to the voluntary association of the SOCIETY OF THE SONS OF ST. GEORGE, established at Philadelphia, for the advice and assistance of Englishmen in distress, shall be transferred to and become and be the property and funds of the Corporation hereby established, to all intents and purposes whatsoever, and from and after the establishment of this Corporation in due form of law, the said voluntary association shall be dissolved and cease to exist: Provided always, that the members of the said voluntary association, being citizens of this Commonwealth, whether resident or honorary, shall be deemed in like manner to be members of this Corporation, on being admitted by a vote of the Society.
